A SEA MONSTER.

Long Branch Fishermen in Terror Over the Continued Appearance of a White Whale.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Nov. 4.—A big white whale has for a week past been using the ocean within two or three miles of the pier as a sort of playing ground. After day he rises from the depths to spout water and astonish the natives. The other day two men were seated upon a swinging scaffold tarring the iron piling at the end of the pier. Dangling beneath, and a little beneath them was a tar bucket which almost touched the water. Suddenly there came an unusual swelling of the sea, and in an instant a great gray body rose complacently out of the water to the consternation of the men. The monster cornered them with a tremendous fountain of water which he spouted from his "blow hole." They lost no time in beating a retreat. Scarcely had they done so when the huge leviathan snapped the rope that held the tar bucket. Pier-keeper Taylor pronounced the fish to be a white whale. It was about thirty-five feet long. The whale sank below the water and swam away. Since then the leviathan has been frequently seen in these waters and has caused no small alarm among fishermen. Recently the whale took a day off and went to Seabright. Two men were quietly fishing in a skiff when they felt it suddenly rise as though lifted by the waves and then the boat shot off into placid water just as a big fish rose above the surface of the water not thirty-five yards away. It was the white whale again. The men were startled by the sight of the monster, and, leaving the fish to sport about the spot at his pleasure, nearly all fishermen along shore are in dread of a sudden and untimely appearance of the whale when their boats may be capsized and their lives lost. The appearance of a white whale in the waters at this time of year is an unusual thing.

IN MORTAL TERROR.

A Telegraph Operator's Experience With An Armed Maniac.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 5.—Peter Kenney, employed as telegraph operator at Ingram station, on the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis railroad, was engaged at his instrument early this morning when he heard a noise as if of some one trying to open the door, but thought nothing of it, nor even looked up from his work until startled by a touch on his coat sleeve. He turned partly around and to his horror saw a tall, gaunt figure dressed in white, with a long knife in its hand and standing directly over him. He cleared the slight railing surrounding his desk at a single bound, but the strange visitor was between him and the door and he began pleading for his life. The specter made no move to follow him except to prevent his escape by the door. As the ghastly creature made no advance, the operator in a measure recovered his self-possession and stood on the defensive in the farthest corner of the room. The apparition then seated itself in Kenney's chair before the telegraph instrument, keeping a close watch on the movements of the operator. They maintained the same relative positions for nearly an hour, during which time the train on the railroad approaching that point were brought to a standstill. One or two trains had been stopped for the signal to go ahead. The crews of the first train finally walked up the track to the telegraph office to find out the cause of the delay, when they discovered the operator's predicament and subdued his captor after a desperate struggle. It was subsequently learned that the strange visitor lived at Sheridan station, nearly a mile away, and had escaped from his home about midnight.

CHICAGO BEEF BUTCHERS.

An Order to Strike by General Master Workmen Butcher.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—There were no further strikes at the stock yards yesterday morning, although it was intimated that the men at the other houses besides Swift's and Morris' might go out, as many of them were dissatisfied at being compelled to work ten hours. The strikers were quiet, the only act of violence on their part having been an attack last night on Henry Levy, Nelson Morris' nephew, who was beaten and carried off to his residence on the Forty-third street viaduct. Swift and Morris have signed the agreement against the eight hour day. The former will import, it is said, expert workmen from Boston and other Eastern points. Both concerns are now shipping cattle east to be slaughtered. Swift commenced operating to-day with new men who are coming from all quarters. Placards all about the building offer the following prices to new men: Skilled butchers from 20 to 45 cents per hour, beef carriers 28 cents per hour, laborers 20 cents per hour. The strike at the stock yards took place, however, very serious turn last night, and to-day will probably decide whether or not there is to be a collapse or a protracted and more general struggle. The result depends upon the action taken by Armour & Co.'s butchers upon a mandate issued by Master Workmen Butler, of the Knights of Labor.

Shot by a Policeman.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 4.—An ugly shooting encounter took place in Wyandotte at ten o'clock last night, between Officer Green B. Anderson and a man from Kansas City, Mo., named Joe Darling. The latter had been drinking elsewhere and was in an excited state at the Garbo House, brandishing a revolver and threatening those around him. The officer was sent for but the man had, in anticipation of his arrival, started along Third street towards the iron bridge, and the officer followed him, overtaking him near Armstrong street. Upon finding the officer at his heels Darling turned and fired two shots at him which Anderson returned with five, two of which took effect in the abdomen of his assailant. He was removed in a hack to the city hall where Drs. Terry and Bernhard examined the wounds and pronounced them of a dangerous character. The wounded man was shortly afterwards removed to his home, 1049 East avenue, Kansas City, Mo., where he lies in a law state.

The Nebraska Legislature.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 5.—The Democrats in Nebraska have elected forty-two members of the Legislature, this being one-third of that body. This is the largest representation the Democrats ever had in the Nebraska Legislature. Their gain is due to the prohibition plank in the Republican platform, which caused the German Republicans to vote solid for the Democrats. The Van Wyck men and the Democrats together can control the next Legislature. The Democrats last night celebrated the election of John A. McShane, the first Nebraska Democratic Congressman, by a big torch-light parade and a reception of the victorious candidate.

HIS REVENGE.

The Surveyor of the Port of New York Shot by a Discharged Employee.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Surveyor of the Port of New York Beattie was shot about noon yesterday in his office, at the custom house, by a discharged inspector, who fired five or six shots. The surveyor's wound was a serious one. A man who gained some distinction in the war of the rebellion. He was for about a dozen years attached to the custom house. About a week ago the surveyor dismissed him from service, it being proven that he was in the habit of exacting money from poor emigrants at Castle Garden, where he was lately stationed. The specific charge on which he was removed was compelling an emigrant to pay $2 duty on a sewing machine. He came to the office about noon yesterday and gained entrance to the surveyor's private office in the back of the building fronting on South William street. At 12:20 the reports of pistol shots were heard by Private Secretary Nichols and Examiner Thomas Hyatt. The discharged inspector rushed instantly out of the private office, pistol in hand, and ran through the corridor to the exit into Hanover street. A man attempted to stop him and he yelled: "If you touch me I'll kill you." The man stepped back and Beattie ran along to Beaver street, into which he turned, and in to the Custom Exchange. A number of citizens followed in pursuit. Finding escape impossible, the man turned and ran into the arms of a policeman. He was trembling with fear, and seemed to anticipate that his pursuers would harm him. He yelled: "If you touch me I'll kill you."
